His wise, conservative makeup, rendered him popular and for his kindly manner and his good judgment, he was elected Justice of Prairie township at three different times. In 1867, Gov. Jones appointed him to the office of county Treasurer to fill an unexpired term. He was elected by the people to succeed himself in that office and was again elected in 1900. After being out of office four years, he was elected in 1906, and has been chosen by his party to serve as their candidate again as county purse holder, and will be easily elected because he is honest and capable. Surrendering to Miss Florence Hinkston's charms, he married her and they have two sons and three daughters, both of the sons being in the U. S. Navy. John graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis last June, and is now a past midshipman on the U. S. S., Mississippi. Wm. the younger son, had been prepared for admission to the same academy in the U. of A., and entered that war training school last June 27, 1908. One of the daughters is Mrs. Ethel Hill, whose husband is conductor on the M. & N. A. Rv., and their home is in Eureka Springs. The other daughters are at home. He has gone through all the Chairs of the Odd fellow's lodge at Berryville and is the dean of the continuous local membership, which lodge he has presented at its State meeting. An honest and capable officer, sure to be reelected. He is always ready to help some one, is a man with will, courage and industry to do the friendly act. His generosity has been a marked characteristic. Everybody likes H. Doxey, because he deserves popularity.

Tom J. Walden is one of the most popular men in the county, far as known, and his reputation has preceded him into all corners where he has gone as county Assessor. He is a Carroll Co., Ark-anas, man from the earliest, having started his career as a lively baby near Beaver. That he has, for thirty-four years, lived on, and, since he has been old enough, has cultivated the farm he now owns, is evidence of his staying qualities. That he has been the teacher guide of all the youth, his neighbors' sons and daughters, for thirteen years, the teacher of his home school for thirteen years, is proof positive that Mr. Walden is an exception to the general and ancient statement that "a prophet is without honor at home." He certainly is trusted and is beloved at home or he would not have been chosen to train the children there clear through their common school career. This is an un~~likely~~ <sup>very</sup> ~~reasonable~~ <sup>reasonable</sup> recommendation to those who do not know him.

He has taught three years away from his home district, and will teach the Beaver school the coming term. He was educated where he has taught so much, and in Clarke's Academy. He teaches the Sunday school class for his home people. A lover of athletic sports, his ability and popularity has made him Captain of The Beaver base ball team that has been taking scalps since their organization. His membership of the W. O. W. and Redman lodges has extended his acquaintance, and he loves the good lessons those lodges teach. Miss Minnie C. Huffman became his wife Oct. 7, 1906, and their little daughter is the presiding genius to their domestic happiness.

No higher encomium on the merits of T. J. Walden need be pronounced than to say that in the two primary races he has run in the county, the vote in his own township was 70 to 1 in his favor the first time, and 76 to 1 in his favor the last election. Many have solicited him to make the race for Sheriff in 1910, but as that is so far off, he declines to answer, but says his present concern is to help elect the whole democratic ticket in the approaching election by an increased party majority. The county democratic ticket is particularly strong this year, and T. J. Walden will do yeoman service with the others to elect it. He is a clean man, an able man, and one who will be promoted to higher office.

The present efficient county clerk, Mr. J. S. Fancher was a husky baby in the nurse's arms on the farm near Fairview, Ark., and grew through the periods of boyhood and youth at his tasks about the farm and in the country schools and at that fine educational institution, Clarke's Academy, in Berryville, and for two years as a student in the college at Osage Mission, Kansas. He had good training in public business as assistant in the office of his father, when the latter was county clerk.

Joe S. Fancher

In 1904, he was elected to the office he now holds and was again elected, as an endorsement of his capacity and his fidelity to the interests of his county, in 1906 and will retire to the farm and take up the pastoral life when his term expires.

He likes farm life and the care of stock, and, grateful to his many friends for their kindness in calling him to serve them, he will get into the workaday harness of the active farmer and stockman with pleasure. He will succeed, too, for he has health, judgment and energy, and, with his jolly, accommodating nature, will always have plenty of good friends, and he knows that a friend is an asset, and tries to have friends by being helpful to others. His social nature and his love of good principle, has led him to join the Odd Fellows, the K. Ps. and the E/ks, in which lodges he has learned good lessons of charity and benevolence.

March 10, 1903, he was joined in wedlock with Miss Cliffie C. Ramsey, and two pretty children, a brother and sister, have come into their home where they have their part, as their horizons of knowledge enlarge, in developing him in the philosophy of life.

He is learning what every parent or guardian knows, that the biggest work done by man is done in the proper training and caring for a family.

Jo Fancher comes of a sterling ancestry, the Fanchers being of a virile and a worthy stock and leaders of the citizenship of their times during the past generations. Always a popular citizen and a working party man, he will be found helping to roll up a good majority for his party ticket, though not a candidate. Jo goes to the farm as soon as his term expires.

The history of Carroll county is the history of its leading citizens. The Bunch family numbered in its membership those who have stood and stand today among those distinguished for achievement in law, politics, education and progress. Henry Lee Bunch was a babe in arms the same year that the celebrated soldier, Robt E. Lee, for whom he was named, presented his sword to General Grant at Appomattox, token that effort to maintain the Confederacy should case, Nov. 24, 1865, Lee Bunch was born on the farm at Dinsmore, Ark. In that best school for developing health, strength, and true habits of manliness, on the farm, his boyhood and youth were spent. Educated in the common school and Clarke's Academy, the young man taught school for five years in Johnson county. Failing in health, he came back to this salubrious climate in 1890 and, for the next years was principal of school at Kingston, Ark., and for the next years was principal of the school at Dinsmore, Ark., and taught one year at Dinsmore. His mother, Clarke's Academy, was chosen as county school teacher for terms in Johnson county. He enjoyed the district school as the youngest teacher, while serving as a teacher that

Over in Huntsville, Ark. May 15, 1867, one of the fattist babies in Ark., was Frank Carroll. As a farmer boy, he was brought up to know the work and business of farming, the best school for the education of youth in developing sturdy manhood, honesty and virtue. He learned those lessons well. He learned who the farmer is and what his needs as a citizen and how he and his should be especially guarded by the judicial, legislative and the executive departments of government. His mind was trained in the country school house and in the schools at Eureka Springs. Awhile he was a clerk in the Eureka postoffice. As a constable, he wrote legal papers, and was

As a deputy Sheriff he acquired familiarity with the work of bringing to the trial court the culprit, or serving those cited to appear as parties principal or witnesses. As policeman four years in Eureka Springs he studied men, the greater and the lesser criminals and evaders and violators of the law. In that school he learned self control and how to keep the peace, and ferret out the "ways that are dark and the tricks that are vain." He studied human nature, and the knowledge there gained serves him well in those offices of the Sheriff that require skill in finding and catching the criminal and in wielding an easy influence over men when they are excited or desperate. Frank Carroll is a remarkably quiet and forceful official. He does not talk much. He has a keen sense of justice and duty, and when his duty points to a thing to be done, he quietly goes and does it without noise or bluster. Cupid's arrow wounded him severely and the only cure was for Miss Lee Tucker to consent to be his bride. They were married Oct. 24, 1887, and two sons and one daughter have entered their home.

He was for years a militia man and held the honorable post of orderly sergeant under Capt. Jas. N. Hill who is now on the Arkansas Supreme Bench. He served as a deputy U. S. Marshall while his father was the incumbent of that office. He has had wide experience in those departments of government fitting him especially for the office of Sheriff, is now serving his first term with credit. He is an honest man, a man of sound business judgment, a generous, an accommodating man, a courageous man, in short, a capable and popular officer. Frank Carroll is a Sherlock Holmes in ferreting out the criminal and a Bat Master-spring in "going after and getting" him. He is a man of unusual force and ability as an executive officer, employing those effective qualities, coolness, courage, resourcefulness and honesty. When not intently engaged in some important matter of business, he is "that big fat fellow over there" that everybody likes—men and women and children, particularly the children and men.

Jefferson Davis Pike Hailey began his career on this mundane sphere, April 26, 1861, when the "grizzled front of red-visaged war" terrified this country, on his mother's farm at Berryville. His mother's splendid superiority was all that saved the large young family, after the father entered the Confederate army at the beginning of war. Educated in the village school and Clarke's Academy. With his brother, he established the Carroll Progress and conducted that good paper for ten years, till 1893, a period of a decade, selling out to serve Uncle Sam as President Cleveland's postmaster at Berryville. Being chosen by his fellow citizens as Circuit Clerk and Recorder in 1896, he resigned as postmaster and served his county two terms. He then engaged in the life of a merchant, he operated the farm till 1906, when he sold it to the Odd-fellow County Collector. He was very fortunate in having county funds deposited in the Eureka bank when it broke and has manfully, though with much difficulty, made good, replacing the lost county money with his own. He is again his party's standard bearer for the same office, and his many friends, who know his fine capacity as a public servant, and his severe losses to maintain his credit under the trying circumstances, will delight to re-elect him. He was always held in high esteem where best known, and filled the offices of alderman and acting Mayor of Berryville. His experience as Mason, Odd-fellow and K. P. was a schooling in virtue and honest purpose. He is a Steward in the M. E. South and a regular attendant at Sunday school, one of the best institutions for the inculcation of noble principles. Miss Sarah E. Watt became his wife in 1885, and four sons and two daughters are in their family circle. Mr. Hailey is one of the most accommodating county officials, always patient, painstaking and honest in his conduct of the public business. A man of public spirit and winning personality, he has always been a leader in what is for the public good, and always a helpful and charitable neighbor and friend. He is always looking on the bright side and though keenly feeling the almost poverty the bank failure brought upon him, he has bravely weathered the storm and will win yet in life's battle because of integrity, energy and perseverance. He is a man of rare quality and has been tried in the fires of disaster not of his own making, and has been found not wanting in manhood and ability.

Mr. Hailey is the gentle man, his kindly spirit shown every day of his life. Some men never think of help, except when it's coming their way. Hailey always enjoys giving help equally with receiving help. His painstaking exactness in the conduct of the business of the public, and his popular qualities, make him a general favorite.

THE POPULAR ARTIST.

LUCIEN GRAY.

A man of travel, a student of the photographic art, active, virile, open-hearted, kindly Lucien Gray, found Eureka Springs, was pleased with its healthful water and climate, was entranced by its illimitable field for the scenic artist, and "pitched his tent," feeling that here he could pursue his art with every chance for pleasure and approach to the ideal in his chosen art.

Here he is known, respected and loved for his devotion to the artistic instinct, and for the art of reproducing the splendors of nature, and the counterparts for the human form and face divine, and the pictures of the lower orders of animals. He is "wrapped up" in his work.

As a scientist in portrait photography, he is a wonder. Why, if it would hold still long enough, if it were less Kaleidoscopic in its poses, he could make a picture of the beatific soul of harmony where is unity of action in the work of building up Eureka Springs—and the sources in the way of natural phenomena furnish all that is necessary to make the picture rivalling Parrhasius' best, even the work done in his "fine frenzy" when he said "My hand feels skillful, and the shadows lift from my waked spirit, swiftly and swift. I think I could paint the bow upon the bent heavens, around me play colors of such divinity today."

If he can get the conditions right, a picture, he will get it. "Triumph," and it will be a Pool of healing es Chicago maelstrom of every twig on look like an Olive anybody's shoulder of peace, Mr. Gray, as one of on as he makes it, soon as everybody remark, in passing, makes a specialty of new-weds, says make the expose composite halo, that the family could hang up in the best room for future reference as an example of sentimental glory—or as a work of humor. It would, also, be constantly didactic, teaching that there is such a thing as "love's young dream."

Mr. Lucien Gray is an artist, and pleases all who call at his splendidly equipped studio on Spring street, Eureka Springs, Ark. For seven years in the federal employ, he made pictures for the government. One extended tour he made was from Portland, Oregon, to South America, Honolulu, Hawaii, Florida and home by New York City to Washington. He was the government official photographer. He was for five years in the employ of railroad companies as official photographer. He has visited every state and territory in the Union, some of them many times. Mr. Gray ascribes much of his success in business here, to the amiability and discretion employed by his good wife who is generally found in the office to meet the patrons of the studio. He attends strictly to his business, and loving his work, he learns all the new tricks and methods. Each year he spends some time in some great city, to perfect himself in his art.

It is much easier to grow an apple orchard than in a few years will bring you in an income of from $50 to $100 per acre every year with very little labor, than it is to raise corn and wheat at $10 to $15 per acre and have to work the whole year at it and be exposed to all kinds of weather. Come to Carroll county and put out an orchard while you can buy land at a reasonable price. It will be the part of wisdom on your part to do it. Carroll Progress.

A Scene on W. W. Roark's Fruit Farm Showing His Three Year Old Elberta Peach Trees.

Mr. W. W. Roark "was born in Old Kentucky," February 11, 1864. Was a farmer, educated himself well to be able to measure up to his ambition to be a useful citizen. Farmed and taught school for 21 years. Spent two years in the mining district of Southwest Missouri, where he learned another side of life and what the mining district is. About ten years ago, he came to this country where a man can find on every hand the natural resources to make comfort, health and happiness for him if he but put mind and muscle into honest work. He landed here with no money and owing a doctor's bill of $8.60. He had sense, sand and soon had forty two miles northwest of town. Now owns the well known Fruit Farm, that has cost $100 per acre for land and while he and his wife were in 40, they have their 6 sons and two oldest and best teacher's certificates in the county. One daughter is Mrs. Hattie Scott, owning with her husband, a fine farm and farm home near Mundell, Ark. Mr. Roark has 2000 apple, pear, peach, plum and cherry trees, 5 1/2 acres in strawberries, 5 1/2 acres in raspberries, 2 1/2 acres in blackberries, 1/2 acre in dewberries, a few gooseberries, 8 acres in vegetable garden, barns, four springs—a splendid property. All made, beside his living and caring for nine children, and paying off his debt, in the past ten years. You can do the same in hundreds of places in this county, if you will attend to business. You can live comfortably while you are doing it, too, Mr. Homeseeker.

Mr. Roark's family have had their honest part in helping pay the expenses of their living and education. In 1907, he sold $240 worth of strawberries from one acre. He gets as much as $300 each year from one acre of his vegetable garden. These hills are rich in latent wealth and need only industry and attention to give up that wealth.

JOHN DeBOIS PRESIDENT OF COMMERCE

Hon John D. DeBois, the present City Attorney of Eureka Springs, Ark., was born Sept. 25, 1848, on a farm in Henry county, Tennessee; where he remained till of age. His last school days were at Holbrook's School, the National Normal at Lebanon, Ohio. He chose the profession of a lawyer and fitted himself for admission to the bar, in the law office of Coody & McRae in Searcy, Ark., where he entered actively into the all public property, and progressive methods in building up a community in material and moral advancement, marked him as a very progressive and public spirited citizen. He has been.

While a resident of Judsonia, Ark., he was City Mayor and for ten years was a member of the Board of Education. He was elected a representative in the Arkansas General Assembly, in 1871. Always interested in public affairs, he was chosen territorial Senator, while in Oklahoma, and was Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Territorial Senate, the most important office in that body.

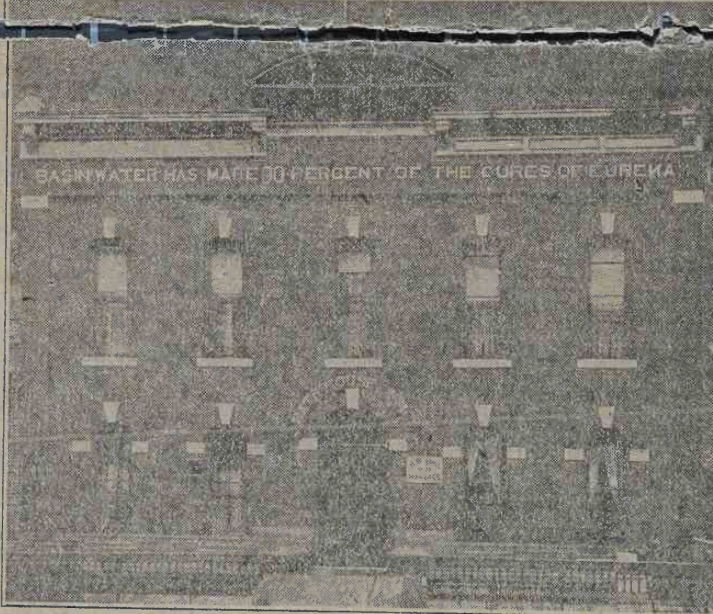

In Guthrie, his broad and quick and correct judgments in business matters, and his ever active interest in the public welfare, was recognized, and he was chosen Chairman of the Real Estate Exchange. At Eureka Springs, he was made President of the Rooster Club, 1907, and later was elected President of the Eureka Springs Commercial Club. He always claiming that Eureka Springs is the best health resort in the Union, and that the city and the mountains surrounding it do not hold the visitors if Eureka Springs as a health resort were properly advertised. He was married to Miss Mary V. Hicks, daughter of Dr. John T. Hicks of Searcy, Jan. 1872. Two sons and four daughters were the fruit of this union. The sons were James T. and Duke Howell, the latter dying at an early age.

In 1891, Mrs. DeBois passed away. Afterwards Mr. DeBois married Miss Hattie P. Mazelle, daughter of Dr. J. H. Mazelle, Juniata, Penn. The children of this union were Mazelle, Juniata, Jennie, and Velma. At Guthrie, Oklahoma, Martin and Oma were married away by death. James married Miss Terrell, and developed into a successful business man, and now continues law practice in 1879. He was a very successful lawyer, and in 1893, moved to Guthrie, Oklahoma, continuing actively in the practice, till he moved to Rogers, Ark., in July, 1905. He bought three fine apple orchards at Rogers, and sold them within a year at a good advance, the aggregate value of the three orchards being about $25,000. In Feb'y, 1906, he purchased the Chautauqua Hotel at Eureka Springs, though not with the view of taking up the hotel man's role, but, purely as a speculation. He, however, did manage the hotel successfully for two years. About Feb'y., 1908, he bought the Southern Hotel, not to run as a hotel, but because he thought it a very fine property. He has always been a Real Estate dealer, since 1885, in White county, Ark., in Oklahoma, in Rogers and here. He has not acted as an Agent, but bought and sold his own properties. He has owned at least $500,000 worth of real estate, first and last, and has always been accounted a man who was ex-

This fine brick building was built a few years ago as a business block and bath house combined. On Main street are two fine, large store rooms with the best basements in the city. It is admirably located at a point just right to unite both country and city trade. THE BATH HOUSE is on a level with Spring street, and reached by a fine iron bridge and wide iron veranda into a fine reception hall. It is a very finely equipped house run by competent and intelligent manager and help. The parlors, cooling rooms and bath departments of ladies and gentlemen are entirely separate. They use only the celebrated BASIN SPRING WATER. The floors above bath house are used for offices or living rooms.

In 1856, Jany. 4, in Mississippi, Samuel Haney Doxey was a bare-foot baby, and the pastoral scenes amongst which he was reared made a gentle man of him, and having inherited a large share of good sense and desire for proper education, he grew up to be a wise and popular man. He showed his wisdom at three years of age by coming to Ark. In 1881, he again acted wisely by coming to the grand county of Carroll from Pulaski country. ## THE GRANGER-KELLEY LUMBER COMPANY

A Concern of Mammoth Proportions. Granger-Kelley Pay Large Sums To Labor. Their's is a Valuable Enterprise for Carroll County. The Company Pay out Over $18,000 Annually to Laborers

Mr. R. S. Granger, the office man of the Granger-Kelley Lumber Company, is shown in the picture herewith.

He, with Mr. Kelley, organized this Company some years ago in a small way and under the able management, it has developed into one of the biggest and best concerns in North Arkansas. Mr. Granger's managerial ability has

Arkansas and plunged into the active work of helping to transform this land from the pristine raw to the great advance in civilization and development now seen. He loves this northern Arkansas country, and, quiet and unassuming and modest, though he is, he has, by steady industry, hard work and honest methods, done a good share in the wonderful transformadone much toward this great enterprise, so prolific of good results in harvesting the great first crop of timber, in manufacturing it into building material for local consumption, and for shipment, and in all this work employing honest labor. Mr. Granger paid the laborers who felled the trees, who hauled to the mills, who made the lumber, who turned out the planing mill product, who did the labor on the yards.

that has swelled the quantity of the local circulating medium, and has thus facilitated the local business development. Mr. Granger deserves great credit for this enterprise he has, with such good judgment and conservative business method, helped to develop to its present large proportions. He has done the public a great service. He has put many thousands of dollars into the hands of labor, he has helped promote the general prosperity. He was born in a rural community in Iowa in Allamakee county, Nov. 20, 1874. What is now Eureka Springs was a wilderness then, where the deer drank at Basin Spring without the presence of man to make him afraid.

...ntonville, economics, he took a course in the law department of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. He has since been a popular teacher and a busy farmer. With his strong common sense and his liberal education, his view of life is broad. He believes that he is a good and a useful citizen who lives an honest unostentatious life in doing the things set before him in his field of action, in an earnest, honest way; and he knows that success is nothing more, nothing less than honest work well done. His honesty of purpose in every work in which he has been engaged, has gained for him the confidence and esteem of his neighbors and they have called him to serve them in several official capacities. He is now a Justice in his township and has done his work with such ability as to win the high regard of his neighbors. For ten years he has been a school teacher and has made a marked record of excellence in that work. He has carried on his farming operations at the same time, doing the active farm work when school was not in session. He has attained the Royal Arch degree in Masonry. A man of high motives, good education, gentle spirit and indomitable energy and courage, he will easily make a winning race for County Clerk, and will fill the office with ability.

...and a Knight of Pythias. Having an intimate knowledge of the farm life, the farmers' right interests, having served as clerk of the circuit court, having lived on intimate terms with men in town and country, having a well-trained mind, he has acquired a conception of justice as it is sought to be applied by government in the settlement of differences arising between citizens and is well qualified to find out evil and to pursue it with justice. The public prosecutor can do society great good by knowing when "the punishment fits the crime," and by letting not guilty one escape. We believe that D. B. Horsley will measure up to the high responsibilities for the repression of crime, and that his official term will be of great value to good government and higher ideals on the part of our citizenship; and that he will be promoted to broader fields of usefulness as a jurist, a prosecutor, and a statesman.

The Declaration of Independence was one century old when Julius Edgar Gregson began his career as an entity, July 4, 1876, on a North Carolina farm. He soon developed into an active boy and youth, imbibing noble principle, gaining actual knowledge of the ups and downs of the farmer's vocation, and how to "earn his bread by the sweat of his brow." This life on the farm, where there is the gift of common sense, is one of the best schools in which to develop the youth in noble aims. His choice by his fellow citizens of the democratic party of Carroll county, as their candidate for the office of County Clerk, adds a strong impetus to the ticket. He left his North Carolina home at the age of sixteen, and came to this old county of Carroll in Arkansas where he engaged in farming. His worthy ambition to rise on his own and influence where his usefulness is broadened and saved and attended the schools, good education. Al ways interested in government and economics, he took a course in the law department of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. He has since been a popular teacher and a busy farmer. With his strong common sense and his liberal education, his view of life is broad. He believes that he is a good and a useful citizen who lives an honest unostentatious life in doing the things set before him in his field of action, in an earnest, honest way; and he knows that success is nothing more, nothing less than honest work well done. His honesty of purpose in every work in which he has been engaged, has gained for him the confidence and esteem of his neighbors and they have called him to serve them in several official capacities. He is now a Justice in his township and has done his work with such ability as to win the high regard of his neighbors. For ten years he has been a school teacher and has made a marked record of excellence in that work. He has carried on his farming operations at the same time, doing the active farm work when school was not in session. He has attained the Royal Arch degree in Masonry. A man of high motives, good education, gentle spirit and indomitable energy and courage, he will easily make a winning race for County Clerk, and will fill the office with ability.

As a proof of the high esteem in which he is held at home, we point you to the vote in his township when he was elected. Gregson received 105 votes, his apponent received 2 votes, Gregson getting 105 of the 107 votes cast. What higher encomium of his worth. He has never been a candidate for county office before, and the campaign yarn will be spun apropos of his candidacy just as it always is. He is a candidate, will not withdraw, and will be elected—and the people will be glad of it when they see how capably, honestly and amiably he will perform his duties as the public servant. He is a splendid example of the self-made man.

DR. RUSSELL G. FLOYD

One of Eureka Spring's Most Prominent Citizens.

One of the leading financiers and men of affairs in Eureka Springs, and who is among those foremost in much of our substantial business life, is Dr. Russell G. Floyd. He has large interests in real estate in the heart of the city, and he helped organize and has been, since its organization, President of the First National Bank here, one of the strong financial institutions in North Arkansas.

A native of Wisconsin, born 1851, he was well educated, and entered the medical department of the great Ann Arbor University of Michigan. He graduated from the Medical Department of Washington University in St. Louis. He came to Eureka Springs in 1885 suffering with Bright's disease, and the climate, the curative properties of the water from our springs effected a complete recovery. He has been thorough and modern in medical science, and has the title of M. D. from the noted Bellvue Hospital Medical college in New York. He has written two valuable books, "The Young Physician," and the "Etiology and Management of Interstitial Nephritis."

Was for many years President of the city Board of Health, was President of the Carroll county Medical Society, President of the Board of Pension Examiners here, a member of the American Medical Association and the Medical Society of Arkansas, and the Mississippi Valley Medical Society.

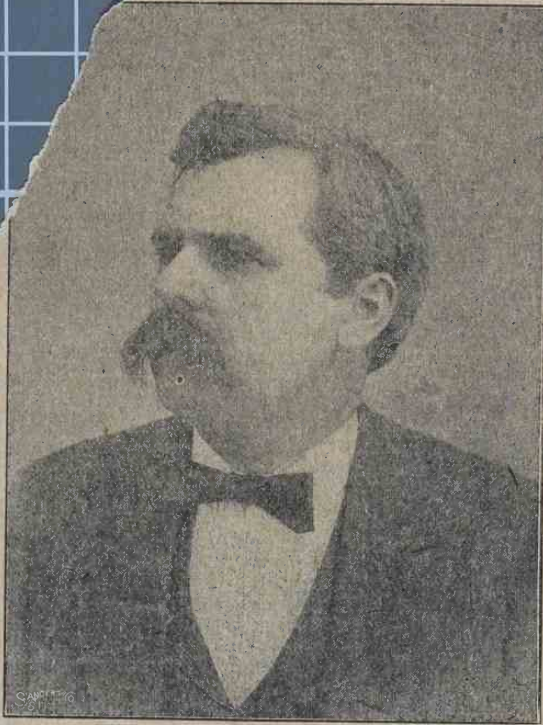

The Grand Lodge of Arkansas Odd Fellows chose him to represent the state in the Sovereign Grand Lodge in 1893, and he was for two years custodian of the Unwritten Work of the Order. He is one of the Little Rock Canton No. 1, Patriarchs Militant. Since the founding of the Widows' and Orphans' Home of this great Order, he has been one of its trustees. Was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas and has the distinguished honor of having had the Grand Decoration of Chivalry conferred at Sovereign Grand Lodge at Atlantic City, N. J., 1895. He is a man of attractive presence, genial temperament and a keen insight into business affairs. He is enterprising in business but with that profound conservatism that conserves the best interests and the most rapid development of safe progress. Dr. Floyd is one of Eureka Springs' foremost citizens, and is eminent in his profession, his offices showing the most modern and scientific equipment for surgery and the general treatment coming to so large a practice as his standing in the state commands.

One of the Leading Citizens of this part of Arkansas is M. W. Swope.

A Kentuckian by birth, he came to Arkansas in 1881. He has been in BEAVER, near Eureka Springs, since 1888. He is the M. & N. A. Station Agent there. He conducts a MAMMOTH GENERAL STORE in his splendid big stone building at Beaver, owns the EUREKA SPRINGS BASE BALL PARK near, owns and manages the RIVERSIDE HOTEL, a popular place for the Eureka Springs resorters, well equipped for the comfort of guests. He has been POSTMASTER of BEAVER since 1892. MR. SWOPE BUYS all the RED CEDAR PRODUCTS he can get. PAYING ALL the markets will justify, HE DOES A BIG SHIPPING BUSINESS. HE BUYS, also HARDWOOD LUMBER. He was one of the original Red Cedar Shippers, and has shipped out over ONE THOUSAND CARS of Red Cedar, besides the Hardwoods he has sent away. He has shipped to all the states and territories west of the Mississippi, and east of the Rocky Mountains, and down to Texas, and to Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Mark Swope has other interests, and is a man of affairs in the broad sense of term. He is genial, a thorough gentleman, everybody's friend, and is very popular in the Beaver country. To him is owing in large measure the rapid development of the larger business interests in the development of this country.

...is a principle in the very good man. J. W. has, in marked degree, for his life work has in Carroll county, Ark., al- He was born on a farm the pioneer village, Rule, 1848. His lore, acquired in the world's fountain for inspiration to do great things, the School House, was in the pioneer country school, the Berryville Academy and in the St. Louis, Mo. Medical College. His subsequent busy life where he has shown how deep he drank of that inspiration, has been a constant effort to learn how to live well and do the most for his kind. His originality, which really amounts to genius, has made him a signal success as a business man and as a legislator. His study, as a physician, has been as much the realm of the influence of and over matter, as it has been a study of chemistry, anatomy and physiology. His practice has been pure science, pure and simple. As a citizen, as legislator, he has been the disinterested pursuit

Hon. J. C. Floyd, in all his public service has bent his energies to conserve the best interests of the farmer; first, because his district is an agricultural district, and second because agriculture should be the first concern in the study of economic questions by the statesman. Filled with a noble ambition to make a career for himself in the service of the public, he labored as student in the Great University of Arkansas, and graduated with the A. B. degree in the "class of '79." He spent the first three years after finishing the University, as a High School Principal. He studied law in the office of Judge E. S. McDaniel at Fayetteville, Judge McDaniel and Col. S. W. Peel being his tutors and patrons. Admitted to practice in the courts, he opened a law office in Yellville, Ark., in 1882. Rapidly advancing to a place in the confidence of the electorate of his country where he was best known, he was elected to and served one term as a law maker in the Arkansas Legislature. Two years strued his pleadings to be good and sound in the law. This may seem trivial to those who are not acquainted with legal procedure, but this ability has saved the taxpayers of the county many dollars in appeals.

The democratic party is proud of its prosecuting attorney, and it is believed that he will not lose a vote in his entire district. Below is an editorial from the Springdale News which shows what the people of Benton County think of Mr. Horsley:

Northwest Arkansas is one of the best, if not the best, places on this planet to be born, Hon. D. B. Horsley thinks, and, "before the fact" of the thought by him, he "came down with a falling star, one night as Old St. Peter slept," or words to that effect—that is to say, D. B. Horsley was born on the farm near Rogers, Ark., June 11, 1869, when the days of reconstruction were having a picnic in Arkansas. In 1869
